Regional PMIs rebound as firms adapt to conflict shock

3 September 2026

- Regional PMIs point to recovery from conflict shock, led by UAE, Dubai.
- Saudi momentum improves; Egypt activity nears stabilisation.
- Demand strengthens across region, but unevenly; UAE new orders strongest, while Saudi orders supported by domestic buyers.
- Supply chains remain key divide, improving in UAE, Saudi Arabia but worsening in Egypt, where shortages, cash-flow strains persist.

The August PMI surveys suggest regional demand is recovering from the conflict shock, but the after-effects remain visible in supply chains, export weakness, and still-firm price pressures.

Regional non-oil activity strengthened as firms continued to adapt to disruption. The S&P Global UAE PMI rose to 55.3 from 52.7 in July, the strongest reading since December 2024, while the Dubai PMI climbed to 54.1 from 51.7.

Saudi Arabia's Riyad Bank PMI rose to a six-month high of 53.8, although activity remains below its long-run trend. Egypt remained just below the neutral 50 level, but its S&P Global PMI jumped to 49.6 from 46.8, signalling only a marginal deterioration in business conditions and the softest decline since January.

Demand has improved across the region, but the recovery remains uneven. Momentum was strongest in the UAE, with new orders rising at the joint-fastest pace in more than two years. Export orders expanded for a second consecutive month as customer activity strengthened and economic caution eased.

Saudi Arabia also recorded a fifth straight rise in new orders, supported by domestic demand. Export orders fell sharply for a sixth month amid elevated regional tensions and foreign competition. In Egypt, shrinking export order books dragged total orders lower, although the pace of decline moderated as firms reported tentative signs of better market conditions.

Supply-chain conditions were the clearest point of divergence among the three economies. UAE firms reported faster delivery times for a third month, helped by improved trade flows and a greater use of local suppliers. Meanwhile, inventories rose at the fastest pace in nearly three years.

Saudi companies also benefited from local sourcing and more responsive vendors, although the improvement in delivery times was the smallest in three months. Egypt moved in the opposite direction. Purchasing activity fell for a fifth month and at the sharpest pace in almost three years. Firms cited low availability of materials, cash-flow constraints, disruption in the Strait of Hormuz, and delayed payments to suppliers.

Labour-market signals were mixed. UAE firms reduced headcount for the second time in three months, with uncertainty still weighing on hiring decisions even as backlogs of work rose sharply.

On the other hand, employment in Egypt increased for the first time since October 2025 and at the second-fastest pace in the survey's history, helping to stabilise order backlogs after three months of accumulation. Saudi Arabia also recorded a second consecutive rise in staffing, though job creation remained modest and below the series trend.

Purchase costs

Cost pressures are still elevated, even if the direction varied by market. Prices reaccelerated in Egypt, with purchase costs and output charges rising more quickly as material shortages, transport costs, and oil prices weighed on firms.

Saudi Arabia's input-price inflation eased to a five-month low but remained elevated, with higher material and freight costs still featuring prominently. Output-price inflation slowed as competition limited pass-through. In the UAE, input-cost inflation softened to a six-month low as supply conditions improved but remained above trend, while cost growth in Dubai quickened.
